Local State of Emergency

Hyatt Regency Huntington Beach is committed to caring for our guests, colleagues and customers, as your safety and wellbeing is a top priority. At this time, Orange County will join other parts of California in declaring a local emergency over the spreading coronavirus, health officials said on February 26. Huntington Beach has zero confirmed cases of COVID-19 originating in the city.

On February 26, Orange County, in response to the COVID-19 situation, made an emergency declaration to strengthen the county’s preparedness to respond to COVID-19. The declaration of a local emergency allows the county to utilize county resources, coordinate agencies across the county, and more – all to bolster resources in an effort to protect the county from the spread of the virus.

This declaration does not affect the operation of the hotel or our ability to serve your group and our guests.

Hyatt Regency Huntington Beach continues to closely monitor the COVID-19 situation, remains vigilant and follows recommended precautionary measures, protocols and guidelines from various health organizations including the World Health Organization (WHO), U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), and local authorities, in an effort to ensure our guests, colleagues and customers remain in a safe and healthy environment.

In January 2020, a comprehensive guide about COVID-19 was shared with all Hyatt hotels globally as well as guidelines on how best to operate given the situation. Some specific measures in place at Hyatt Regency Huntington Beach include additional cleaning measures in public areas, restaurants, meeting spaces, guestrooms, spa, and fitness centers. In addition, in the interest of all guests and colleagues, if a guest or colleague exhibits symptoms of COVID-19, it remains a high priority for our hotel to safely relocate these individuals to a place where they may receive appropriate medical attention.

We will continue to follow recommended measures, as provided by Orange County, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and local authorities. As this situation evolves, we will continue to evaluate and make operational changes as needed.

Further, Hyatt has assembled a global cross-functional response team to monitor new information and promptly update company-wide guidance – and Hyatt has also engaged an infectious diseases and health expert to provide COVID-19 research findings and information.
